with the release of a documentary film based on her life. Although the diary was already published in Poland, something of a mystery still hovers over the Jewish teen, whose name does not appear on Holocaust victim lists in Poland or Israel.

Born in 1924, Spiegel grew up on her father's estate near Poland's border with Romania. Her younger sister, Ariana, was a child film star and the sisters lived with their grandparents in sleepy Przemysl, a border town along the San River.

When she began keeping her diary at the end of 1939, Spiegel explained, "I simply seek a friend." Her first entry resembles Anne Frank's initial essays, offering a candid account of her loneliness. Also quite similar to early entries in "The Diary of a Young Girl," Spiegel includes biting commentary on her classmates.

Alongside an active social life and her writing, Spiegel dabbled in illustrating. A few months before Nazi Germany's invasion of Poland, she fell in love with a student named Zygmunt Schwarzer, whose father was a well-known physician. Torture and degradation on the streets took place daily during those years and Spiegel wrote in the spring of 1942, "Oh God Almighty! Help us! Take care of us, give us your blessing."

On July 15, the Nazis established a ghetto in Przemysl. Before long, 24,000 Jews from the region were crammed into a small part of town. "Remember this day; remember it well, you will tell generations to come about it one day," wrote Spiegel after the ghetto was fenced off. A few days later, on July 30, Spiegel was captured along with Schwarzer's parents and shot. "Three shots! Three lives lost! It happened last night at 10:30pm. Fate has decided to take my dearest ones away from me," wrote her friend Schwarzer. He did not write these words in his own journal, but in Spiegel's yellow-paged diary, which had been entrusted to him a few days prior.

Comprehension:

Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.

Renia's Diary: A Young Girl's Life in the Shadow of the Holocaust, is being published in the United States on September 17. After being lost for decades, the writings of Holocaust victim Renia Spiegel have been finding new admirers. The 18-year old Spiegel was murdered by the Nazis in 1942, but the rediscovery of her poetry-rich diary has some people referring to her as "Poland's Anne Frank. "Spiegel's diary will soon be published in English for the first time, along with the release of a documentary film based on her life. Although the diary was already published in Poland, something of a mystery still hovers over the Jewish teen, whose name does not appear on Holocaust victim lists in Poland or Israel.

Also quite similar to early entries in "The Diary of a Young Girl," Spiegel includes biting commentary on her classmates.

Alongside an active social life and her writing, Spiegel dabbled in illustrating. A few months before Nazi Germany's invasion of Poland, she fell in love with a student named Zygmunt Schwarzer, whose father was a well-known physician. Torture and degradation on the streets took place daily during those years and Spiegel wrote in the spring of 1942, "Oh God Almighty! Help us! Take care of us, give us your blessing."

On July 15, the Nazis established a ghetto in Przemysl. Before long, 24,000 Jews from the region were crammed into a small part of town. "Remember this day; remember it well, you will tell generations to come about it one day," wrote Spiegel after the ghetto was fenced off. A few days later, on July 30, Spiegel was captured along with Schwarzer's parents and shot. "Three shots! Three lives lost! It happened last night at 10:30pm. Fate has decided to take my dearest ones away from me," wrote her friend Schwarzer. He did not write these words in his own journal, but in Spiegel's yellow-paged diary, which had been entrusted to him a few days prior.

Renia Spiegel have been finding new admirers. The 18-year old Spiegel was murdered by the Nazis in 1942, but the rediscovery of her poetry-rich diary has some people referring to her as "Poland's Anne Frank. "Spiegel's diary will soon be published in English for the first time, along with the release of a documentary film based on her life. Although the diary was already published in Poland, something of a mystery still hovers over the Jewish teen, whose name does not appear on Holocaust victim lists in Poland or Israel.

Born in 1924, Spiegel grew up on her father's estate near Poland's border with Romania. Her younger sister, Ariana, was a child film star and the sisters lived with their grandparents in sleepy Przemysl, a border town along the San River.

When she began keeping her diary at the end of 1939, Spiegel explained, "I simply seek a friend." Her first entry resembles Anne Frank's initial essays, offering a candid account of her loneliness. Also quite similar to early entries in "The Diary of a Young Girl," Spiegel includes biting commentary on her classmates.
