Passage:

Read the following passage carefully and choose the most appropriate answers to the given questions out of the four alternatives.

Human rights are moral principles or norms for certain standards of human behaviour and are regularly protected in municipal and international law. They are commonly understood as inalienable, fundamental rights to which a person is inherently entitled simply because she or he is a human being and are inherent in all human beings, regardless of their age, ethnic origin, location, language, religion, ethnicity, or any other status. They are applicable everywhere and at every time in the sense of being universal, and they are egalitarian in the sense of being the same for everyone.

Q.No: 104

They are regarded as requiring (empathy) and the rule of law and imposing an obligation on persons to respect the human rights of others, and it is generally considered that they should not be taken away except as a result of due process based on specific dircumstances. The doctrine of human rights has been highly influential within international law and global and regional institutions. Actions by states and non-governmental organisations form a basis of public policy worldwide. The idea of human rights suggests that if the public isotrourse of peacetime global society can be said to have a common moral language, it is that of human rights."

"Human rights are commonly understood as inalienable." Why is it so?

- Because these rights simply can vary depending on regions or countries instead of a person.
- Because a person's ethnic origin or religion cannot affect these rights except diplomatic policies.
 - Because these rights are for humans, they can be extended for humans but not on the basis of language or location of a person.
- D Because a person is a human being and these rights are inherent in all human beings.
